

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The twenty-ninth annual report is herewith submitted by the Board of Trustees, together with the report of the Treasurer and that of the Librarian.

From the report of the Treasurer, it will be seen that the investments of the Gardner Fund and the Hall Fund have proved extremely fortunate, and that the capital has been considerably increased. The income has been regularly paid in, and has, as heretofore, been expended in the purchase of books of standard value, and of high merit.

The report of the Librarian shows that the condition of the library has been materially improved, by the substitution of new for worn-out and defaced books.

The present number of volumes is 30,842.

The number of volumes added by gift or purchase during the year is 1,323.

The average daily circulation during the year has been 137 per day for home use, or 155 for home and library use.

The total circulation for the year has been 47,394.

Hon. Theodore Lyman, late member of Congress from our district, has during his whole term kept the library well supplied with Congressional publications and valuable Public documents. Several Government publications have already been received from Hon. F. D. Ely, the present member. The library is also indebted to the thoughtfulness of C. K. Fay, Esq., member of the State Legislature from this town, for a number of valuable State publications.

The walls of the room over the Reference Library have been entirely covered with shelving, since the last report, which will be devoted mainly to Public documents.

The growth of the library is steadily crowding the book hall, and the time is not distant when it will become necessary to shelve the Trustees' room, which will accommodate a large number of volumes. This will in nowise interfere with the continued use of the room for board meetings.

An electric call-bell has been placed in the book hall, connected with a button on the side of the delivery desk. This will enable any one entering the waiting-room to communicate immediately with the assistants, whose time, when not attending to book borrowers, is mostly occupied in covering and labelling books, or other library work in the larger hall.

Another improvement consists of an ingenious arrangement of copper conduits and brass tubing, by which the condensation drip from the three large sky-lights over the book and delivery halls is collected and conveyed through the brick partition-wall to the tank. It is hoped that this device will effectually do away with a trouble which has been a constant source of annoyance ever since the occupation of the building.

Good order has been preserved in the reading-room and waiting-room, and the Trustees are glad to say, that they have had no occasion to avail themselves of the wise act, passed by the last legislature, for the prevention of lawlessness and disturbance in libraries.

The Trustees in closing would express their entire satisfaction with the prompt, conscientious, and thorough manner in which all of the library work has been conducted during the past year.

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT.

BROOKLINE, Feb. 1, 1886.

To the Trustees of the Brookline Public Library:

GENTLEMEN, — The official returns for the library year ending Jan. 30, 1886, are herewith respectfully presented in this, my fourteenth annual report.

The close of the twenty-ninth year finds the library still advancing in prosperity and usefulness, still pressing forward to higher and better work, with a measure of success which warrants present congratulation and the highest expectations for the future.

An institution so generously enriched by its friends, and so liberally sustained by the town, has a past of which it may be justly proud, — one which has won favor and appreciation at home, and a high reputation among the libraries of the land.

CONDITION.

Every year the condition and value of our collection of books is enhanced by new accessions, and the deteriorations of age and wear made good, as far as practicable, so that its general status is preserved intact.

The present report has no exception to make in regard to the books or other property of the library, but finds everything in good working order.

Contrary to last year's prediction, we have withdrawn and replaced double the number of books that seemed probable at that time; but the incessant wear of another year plainly showed the wisdom of replenishing our fiction alcoves, and the step was accordingly taken within the last two months, resulting in the withdrawal of 269 volumes, and the replacement of 214 of them.

The condition of the books has been still further improved by rebinding 544 volumes, besides the innumerable instances of repairing done by the library assistants, which always goes so far towards keeping our books whole and presentable.

Altogether the library now contains 30,842 volumes, and will soon overrun its shelving capacity, unless relieved by additional book space.

ACCESSIONS.

The catalogue of accessions shows a total entry of 1,537 volumes; but, as 214 of these volumes were to replace worn-out copies, we have a net gain of only 1,323 volumes. These additions are credited respectively, to purchases, 833 volumes; to gifts, 609 volumes; and to newly-bound periodicals, 95 volumes.

Many valuable and useful works are to be found in the list of books bought, including Leslie Stephen's "Dictionary of national biography"; Halkett and Laing's "Dictionary of anonymous and pseudonymous literature of Great Britain"; Grove's "Dictionary of music and musicians"; Lippincott's "Biographical dictionary" (new edition); Von Falke's "Art in the house"; Perrot and Chipiez's Histories of "Art in ancient Egypt" and "Art in Phœnicia"; Woltmann and Woermann's "History of painting"; Schliemann's "Tiryns"; Goodale's "Wild flowers of America"; Lotze's "Microcosmos"; and many others, which will be found in the extended lists of the Gardner and Hall fund purchases, and also scattered through the general list of additions — Appendix D.

In accordance with the kindly purpose of Mrs. and Miss Twichell, as announced in my last report, the library has received from them 274 additional volumes of public documents during the past year, making their whole gift 436 volumes.

Numerous gifts have been received from various other friends, prominent among whom may be named Mrs. J. Randolph Coolidge, Miss Helen Griggs, Miss Ellen Chase, Mrs. S. Dana Hayes, Mr. Edward S. Philbrick, Hon. Theodore Lyman, Hon. John W. Candler, Mr. Clement K. Fay, Mr. William L. Chase, Mr. George Dexter, Mr. Frederick Beck, and Rev. C. D. Bradlee, to whom, as to all other benefactors, the library tenders its grateful acknowledgment.

Beside the book accessions, I have to report the receipt of 458 pamphlets, and 447 unbound periodicals, which completes the story of the year's growth.

CIRCULATION.

The principal features of circulation, as reported last year, remain equally true in the present instance, and I have again to record a decreasing number of books taken home, and an increasing ratio used in the library.

For several years there has been a very gradual but perceptible change in the character of books drawn for home reading, and it is gratifying to assert that fiction is losing its old percentage, while more substantial reading is as certainly gaining ground. Much of this is due to readers at large, but a very commendable proportion is directly attributable to the growing tendency among the pupils of our schools, not only to consult books here, in connection with their studies, but to take them home — a praiseworthy fact over which we rejoice, feeling that it is more than equivalent to the loan of many thousand volumes on the old basis. This change, without doubt, affects our present statistics, although not accounting entirely for figures which fall below our general average, so far as home circulation is concerned.

On the other hand, the use of books in the library has shown most satisfactory results, an increase of nearly 600 volumes being made last year. This we know to be largely due to the help that has been afforded, in matters of research, to whomsoever has sought it, more especially to the young people, who are beginning to learn the true value of the library, and coming freely to its stores for aid in their various studies and occupations. It has been our policy to meet this tendency with hearty encouragement and to foster this newly-awakened interest in every possible way, believing that such a course best fulfils the higher interests both of the library and of the community.

In connection with the circulating department we have recently been obliged to issue a "new series" of register slips and library cards in order to secure a correct register of actual borrowers.

Unfortunately in some cases, the impression seems to have obtained that new and arbitrary rules were being introduced, and that rights and privileges were to be restricted, whereas, nothing more formidable was asked than that each card holder who desired to continue its use, should come to the library and sign a new register blank and receive a new card,—all of which was in conformity with one of the regulations of the library, adopted at the town-meeting, March 25, 1861, which says:—

“Any inhabitant of the town of Brookline, who shall sign an obligation to observe all the existing Rules and Regulations of the Library and all that may be subsequently adopted, shall have free right to take books therefrom, so long as he or she shall comply with the same.”

Every person now using the library, or, holding cards in disuse has signed such an obligation, and these slips alphabetically arranged form our official autograph register of book-borrowers. These slips and cards had been accumulating since the summer of 1871 and until they greatly exceeded the present number of borrowers; hence the necessity of correcting the register so that accuracy might be restored in our library records.

This discrepancy was not, however, due to negligence or error on the part of the library, but to the changes which fourteen years have wrought in families (by reason of removals, long absence, marriages and deaths) where the cards have never been given up to the library, and were to all intents and purposes still in existence as far as the library was concerned.

It is easy to see that the simplest way out of the difficulty was to cancel the old register and form an entirely new one, which was accordingly done—and the wisdom of the measure may be best demonstrated by contrasting the old register, containing over 6,600 names, with the new one of 1,441 names. The latter register is not yet complete, but represents the constant users of the library.

The statistical items of the circulating department are as follows: The library was open 305 days, in which 41,689 volumes were delivered for home use, and 5,705 volumes for use in the library, making a total delivery of 47,394 volumes, or an average of 137 per day for home use, or a total average circulation of 155 per day. The largest daily issue of the year occurred Saturday, January 30, 1886, when 310 volumes were taken for home use.

There are no losses to report, and fewer injured books than last year, the fines on the latter amounting to $13.19. The sum of $137.12 has been collected on overdue books, for which 3,219 postal notices were sent. The total receipts from all fines amount to $150.31.

SUMMARY.

A résumé of the year's record, therefore, shows the library in well-preserved condition, augmented by well-chosen and valuable accessions; with a home circulation somewhat decreased in point of numbers, but improved in character; a marked gain in the use of books here in the building; and the work pertaining to every branch of the library service accomplished to the best of our ability.

MARY A. BEAN,
Librarian.

THIRTY-SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The Trustees of the Public Library are able to report another year of steady growth, and constantly increasing usefulness, in the institution under their charge. A loss which has been felt keenly by all connected with the management of the library, was the death of the chairman of the board, Hon. William Aspinwall. The Trustees, at their next ensuing regular meeting, adopted the following minute in recognition of the services he had rendered to the Library :

“The Hon. William Aspinwall died on the 25th of October, 1892. A member of the Board of Trustees of the Brookline Public Library almost from its foundation, and its chairman for the past six years, he brought to it the experience of a cultured education and a varied reading, and gave to it cheerfully his best mental effort. The Library was as dear to him as any institution of the town; and mindful of it, even in death, he bequeathed to it his valuable private collection of foreign literature. This board, at this first meeting after his death, desires to put on record this minute of its appreciation of his services, and thus to express its sense of the loss it has sustained.”

Another of the Trustees, Mr. E. C. Hovey, being constrained by the pressure of public duties which often called him out of the state, has resigned his place at our board. Mr. Hovey brought to the meetings of the board large information as to the methods of conducting library work, and his resignation occasioned much regret. To fill these two vacancies, in accordance with the laws of the state, the Trustees and the Selectmen made choice of James M. Codman and Edward Stanwood.

The new card-catalogue has been for some months in use, and has furnished most valuable assistance to readers, in finding the books of which they are in search. The new reading-room is well patronized, and has won unstinted praise because of its beauty, and its fitness to serve the purpose for which it was designed. Some little trouble was experienced, at first, in the enforcement of rules sufficiently rigid to secure that degree of quiet, essential to the comfort and enjoyment of readers. But the general public has now, for the most part, heartily accepted these rules, made for the good of all, and there is seldom an occasion for the display of authority. Out of the accumulated income of the Gardner Fund, the Trustees have purchased for this room a handsome clock, and have caused it to be suitably inscribed, as another memorial to the generosity of the giver of that fund. Would that more of our citizens might make provision, in this way, to recall their names to the memory of coming generations !

The new reference-room is very much in demand. The books here are next the hand of all who desire to consult them ; as directly under their control as the books of a private library. Scholars in our schools are now making large use of these reference books, and we are glad to be able to say that, so far as we know, there has been no abuse of the privilege accorded them.

The children's reading-room has been more thronged than ever before ; the number of children supplied with books in this department standing at 8,605. This is a gain over last year of 1,784. New books have been added to this department, from time to time, but it is still insufficiently supplied, and it is the purpose of the Trustees, as soon as the requisite time and money can be spared, to provide for it a much larger amount of the best juvenile literature.

For several years the use of the library has been growing at a constantly increasing rate. The gain reported each year has surpassed the gain made during the previous year. We now report a total circulation of 83,007, a gain of 9,182 ; and an increase over last year's gain of 1,731. Most of this gain is in books registered at the desk for home use, and is of course accounted for, in great degree, by the larger number of borrowers. Last year the total number of borrower's cards in use was 4,519. This year it is 5,100, an increase of 581. This, again, marks an accelerated rate of progress ; the new-comers of this year being 97 more than the new-comers of the previous year.

How many of these new borrowers are new residents of our rapidly growing town, and how many are old residents attracted to the library by changes recently made, we are unable to report. The question is not of great importance, save as a means of testing the practical value of these improvements in making the library more attractive and in furnishing better facilities for the selection of books. This test, however, can be made in another way. As was said last year, dividing the total circulation by the total number of books in the library, shows the degree of use to which these books are put ; as if one person had read, and re-read, all the volumes upon our shelves. Thus, in 1891, it was as if that supposititious person had read through the library 1.8 times ; in 1892, as if he had read it through 1.95 times ; this year it is as if he had read it through 2.09 times. This represents a distinct gain, not only in the number of people making use of the library, but in the number of books which these people read ; and the Trustees have a right to credit this to the better management which experience and observation are all the time teaching.

And this improvement is really larger than the figures for the year will show. In our reference and reading rooms books are now constantly in use by the public, of which no account is made ; but which, a year ago, would have been recorded as books taken out on hall slips, and added to the circulation. If we had any way of recording the use of these books, our circulation for the year would show several thousands larger at least, and the proof of the usefulness of the library which we are able to present in figures would be materially increased.

The year has been too crowded with work to permit the re-arrangement and re-classification of the library, which the Trustees have contemplated ; and until that is accomplished, it is not advisable to make the new classified finding lists, which we hope soon to put at the service of the public. We expect these to be a very important supplement to the card catalogue, as a means of reaching the books that readers require. Other changes and improvements are under consideration, upon which it is now too soon to make a definite report.

The cost of heating and lighting the new part of the library building is even greater than the Trustees anticipated, and we must ask a still larger appropriation to meet the expense. If, however, the town will satisfy our demands this year, we can see no occasion for a considerable increase during a period of years to come. Ours is unquestionably, as compared with some other libraries, a somewhat expensive building to maintain. On the other hand, we feel that our citizens get what they pay for, in a building exceptionally light, spacious and attractive, and in a service, we hope, efficient and agreeable to all.

Other facts of interest will be found in the reports of the Treasurer and Librarian, hereto appended.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

BROOKLINE, Feb. 1, 1893.

To the Trustees of the Brookline Public Library:—

GENTLEMEN,—My twenty-first annual report is herewith respectfully submitted, embodying the statistics and other features of library interest for the year ending January 31, 1893.

Several important events have marked the year, notably the opening of our new reading-room, the establishment of the reference-room, and the completion and introduction of the public card catalogue, each of these events affording opportunities which have been eagerly seized and improved by the public, with evident signs of approval and appreciation. Equipped with these improvements, as well as with ample book-room and a convenient waiting-room, we are now in condition to do good and effectual work for many years to come.

A re-arrangement of the books upon the shelves is the one thing needed to perfect our library of over 39,000 volumes. This matter has been under consideration for several years, but no definite plan reached, because other important work seemed to claim precedence, but the time has now come when the work can and should be done.

The increased business of the library, which is apparent in every department, as will be seen by the statistics later on, is due partly to the rapid growth of the town which brings new-comers to the library; partly to a newly awakened interest in the library consequent upon recent improvements, but more largely upon the growth of school work, the teachers alone having drawn 2,845 volumes for use in their classes.

Circulation.

The most gratifying statistics of the year are those of circulation, which show this increase in a very marked degree.

The year contained 303 library days, with the following record:—

Home use (desk account)	65,229 vols.
Home use (Trustees' account)	1,436 vols.
Total home use	66,665 vols.
Library use (on hall slips)	3,314 vols.
Total home and hall use	69,979 vols.
Library use (children's reading-room)	13,028 vols.
Total registered use	83,007 vols.

The loans for home use last year were 60,731 against 66,665 this year, making a gain of 5,934 volumes. The total circulation this year is 83,007 against 73,825 as last reported, making a total gain of 9,182 volumes.

The daily averages of this circulation were 215 on the desk account for home use, 220 on the total home use, 230 upon the combined home and desk use, and 274 on all registered use. The largest day's circulation occurred March 19, 1892, and numbered 453 volumes.

Incidental to the circulation we have issued 692 new cards, making a total of 5,100 cards in use. We have also sent 4,924 notices for overdue books, and have collected $212.60 in fines.

In compliance with the requirements of the Board of Health, we have likewise sent out 132 notices prohibiting the return of books from houses where contagious diseases exist, and also withholding the privilege of drawing books, from all members of the family until the quarantine is declared off by that board.

The other items of work accomplished in this department, are the rebinding of 328 books, and the covering and labeling of 7,080 volumes.

Accessions.

In growth, as well as in circulation, we find increased statistics: the catalogue of accessions registering the entry of 2,089 volumes, and 410 pamphlets, besides miscellaneous gifts of unbound magazines, maps, portraits, and the like.

The book additions were acquired by purchase, gift, and the binding of periodicals, and number 1,570, 322, and 197, respectively. Out of the number purchased (1,570) there were 489 volumes to replace an equal number withdrawn, so that the gain in new books is but 1,081, which with the gifts (322) and periodicals (197) makes a net gain of 1,600 volumes during the year, and raises the total number of volumes in the library to 39,007.

The New Reading-Room.

Our new reading-room was quietly opened to the public on the evening of March 21, 1892, without formality of any kind. From that date to the present it has rarely been without readers from the opening to the closing hour—a sufficient commentary upon its timeliness, usefulness and general appreciation.

None but the highest encomiums have been expressed as to either the architectural beauty of the room, or the liberal provisions for the convenience, comfort and enjoyment of its patrons; and one has but to note the general air of satisfaction with which each visitor makes use of its privileges, in order to be convinced that a good work has been accomplished.

The New Reference-Room.

Among the new features of the year has been the establishment of a public reference department, where the books may be freely taken from the shelves and consulted at will. The room which was fitted up for this purpose proves admirably adapted, and quite adequate to the present needs.

The reference books were transferred to their new quarters, arranged, and shelf-listed early in March, and from that time onward their use has been steadily on the increase.

The librarian's desk has been transferred to this room, from which point of vantage she may not only see, hear, and know all that goes on in the three rooms, but may superintend the card catalogue, direct the children and lend a helping hand to whomsoever needs it.

Although the room is used at all times of the day it has been found that the forenoons afford the best opportunity for undisturbed study, consequently are preferred by most ladies.

To the teachers and pupils the room is a special boon, the afternoons and early evening hours being almost exclusively given over to school work, and at certain hours the room is like a hive of human bees, so crowded is it with young and busy workers, either taking notes on the morrow's lesson, or searching material for the next composition, or the coming debate. The general deportment at such times is worthy of comment as being highly satisfactory.

No record of this work has been attempted, or would be possible indeed, but from careful observation of its every phase I may say that much good work has been done already and that much more may be expected.

The Public Catalogue.

Although the early history of the card catalogue has already been touched upon in the two preceding reports, I claim indulgence for repeating enough to make a condensed story from first to last which shall go on record for future reference.

It will be remembered that in the spring of 1890 it was decided to prepare a type-written card catalogue of all books added to the library since the publication of the supplement of 1881, and to place it outside the desk for public use, as a supplement to the two printed catalogues, and coming down to date.

A Hammond typewriter was bought and the services of an expert secured. The work began on the last of May and was completed August 30, the cards actually being ready for use Sept. 1, 1890. While this task was under way, it became evident that a complete card catalogue was the one thing necessary, and your board authorized its preparation.

Beginning Sept. 18, 1890, the work went steadily on, through all the stages of preparing copy, typewriting, revision, correction and alphabetizing, to its completion August 25, 1892. The last half of the revision, the alphabetical arrangement and the distribution of the cards in the trays with their guide-cards and catch-letters, being the work of the present year.

The catalogue as it stands today contains between 78,000 and 79,000 cards, and indexes the entire library of over 39,000 volumes.

Children's Reading-Room.

This room still continues under the superintendence of Mr. Orcutt, and is open daily from 2 to 6 P. M., and again from 6.30 to 8 o'clock in the evening.

Many new picture books have been added to its shelves, and 8,605 children have pored over them during the year, the record showing the use of 13,028 books.

The room is often over-crowded, and upon several occasions the services of both janitors have been required to meet the demands of the children, as well as to preserve order.

Conclusion.

In closing, I beg to say that while the increased work of the year has demanded much extra labor and long hours, it has been accomplished by the usual library staff, and its record is submitted in the belief that it is worthy of your approval.

MARY A. BEAN,

Librarian.

THIRTY-FIFTH ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

It has been the hope of the Trustees that they might announce in this report the completion of quite important changes that have been in progress during the year. But the unavoidable delays which usually attend such work have intervened to prevent this announcement; though unquestionably, by the time this report reaches the citizens of the town, two of the improvements now almost completed, will be in public use.

In their last report the Trustees called attention to the frequent overcrowding of the reading-room, and the immediate need of more space in that part of the building. At the following town meeting, the sum of $16,000 was voted for this purpose. Plans for a wholly new reading-room were submitted by Fehmer and Page, architects, and accepted by the Trustees. The work has been carried out under the supervision of a building committee, consisting of Dr. Augustine Shurtleff, Dr. T. E. Francis, and Mr. Desmond Fitzgerald. The Trustees are confident that the beauty of this room will win for it much admiration, and that, suitably furnished, it will prove both comfortable and attractive. A part of the old reading-room will henceforth be devoted to the books of the Reference Library, which will thus be brought within easier reach of all who wish to consult them.

The new card-catalogue is also nearly ready to put into the hands of the public, and once being accustomed to its use the patrons of the library will undoubtedly find it of great advantage. This catalogue will always contain the latest accessions and will do away with the frequent necessity to search through several lists in order to find a desired book. When it is ready for consultation, and supplemented, as the Trustees intend, by a few subject finding-lists of books most in demand, people will find, much more readily, the reading matter for which they are in search.

A considerable part of the year's work has been done under great disadvantages. The dust and noise incident to the work of building have been a great annoyance, not only to the library officials, but to those who have come for books. Nevertheless the statistics presented by the Librarian show a gratifying increase in the use of the library. Our total circulation of 73,825 is a gain of 7,551 over that of last year. This does not quite equal the stride then taken beyond the figures of the previous year. But the failure has come, when it was looked for, in the use of books within the Library itself. We have had no place, even remotely suitable for this purpose. Still we have made a gain of 4,665 in this department; but it is 1,925 less than the gain reported last year.

With the completion of the new reading-room these figures will probably show at once a very marked increase. In books taken for home use we have more than made good last year's advance. The gain then reported was 4,697; now it is 5,626. Supposing this gain to be represented by the new borrowers, there are of these this year 484, three less than last year; while to this lesser number we have given out 929 more books.

The degree of usefulness which the library has reached may be fairly found through a division of the total circulation by the total number of books it contains. From this it appears that last year it was as if one reader had read through the whole library a little more than one and eight-tenths times. This year it is as if that suppositious reader had gone through the shelves one and ninety-five hundredths times. Probably in a place which contains so many fine private libraries, and with the larger libraries of Boston so close at hand, we cannot hope to equal the circulation which some other public libraries of the same size are able to show. But the habit of reading is none too general here, and the Trustees are desirous, by making the books as easily accessible as may be, and by rendering the library in all ways attractive, to still further increase its usefulness.

We again call special attention to the children's reading-room, which continues to be well used and enjoyed, though it is as yet but imperfectly supplied with books for children. The attendance during the year (6,821) indicates something quite worth while already accomplished, and still larger possibilities in time to come. These children are not only instructed or amused for the moment, but are making acquaintance with the library and are being trained toward appreciation of its benefits in the future. During the next year we hope to provide this room with an adequate library for children, and no section of our books is less likely to be left in idleness upon the shelves. To some extent the library needs rearrangement and reclassification, and this will make part of the work of the coming year. Not until this work is finished can the strain of special effort, which has been felt for a considerable period, be once more relaxed and our working force fall into a steady routine.

The cost of heating, lighting, and caring for the larger building now under our control will add materially to the expense of maintaining the library. But the liberality which the town has heretofore manifested makes us bold to ask for the increased appropriations that have become necessary. A considerable sum will have to be taken from whatever is voted at the next annual meeting to provide the furniture for the new reading-room, and we ask the citizens to bear this in mind in considering the requests that we shall make. Further details of the work of the year, and its cost, will be found in the reports of the Treasurer, the Librarian, and the Building Committee, hereto appended.

REPORT OF THE BUILDING COMMITTEE.

The Trustees in their last annual report stated their conviction that additional reading-room accommodation was required. After exhaustive discussion, and the fullest and most mature consideration, it was decided to apply to the town for the means to build an entirely new reading-room, and to make such alterations as would be necessary to adapt it to the old building.

A Building Committee was chosen by the board, and Messrs. Fehmer and Page were selected as architects. The plans and specifications having been approved, and an appropriation of $16,000 having been voted by the town at the annual meeting, advertisements were inserted in Brookline and Boston newspapers, for proposals for the construction of the reading-room.

In due time a meeting of the board of Trustees was held, for opening the several sealed bids. That of Mr. Watts H. Bowker proved to be the lowest, and was accordingly accepted. The amount was $11,997. At a later date, the offer of Mr. Bowker to make all the alterations found necessary in the old library building, and contained in plans and specifications submitted by the architects, for $2,393, was also accepted.

The excavation of the cellar was begun as soon as possible, and the wall built up ready for the sills. At this point a notice was received by the board from the School Committee, stating that the steam-boiler which had heretofore furnished steam for the library heating, as well as for that of the High school, would in future only supply the need of the school, owing to additions to the High school building, and that the library must get steam in some other way. The board of Trustees at once recognized the necessity of introducing an independent steam plant, and made a contract with the Walworth Construction and Supply Company, for a tubular boiler, and necessary connections with the existing system of pipes, new registers, etc., for the sum of $1,197. A contract was also made with Mr. Seth W. Fuller for all necessary electric wiring, and new chandeliers.

The work has gone on uninterruptedly under the constant supervision of the architects, who have met the Building Committee three times a week, upon the ground. The weather was favorable for building operations from the start, and the roof was on and covered in before the winter storms set in. Every portion of the work has been done in a manner satisfactory to the Committee, and is now substantially finished.

Upon entering the building the visitor will find upon the left, where was formerly a portion of the waiting-room, the card-catalogue department. Here, arranged upon what is known as the single-tray system, is to be the card catalogue of the entire library. By this system the library is more accessible than by any other yet devised. Every book in the library is here represented by at least one card, and some by a great many cross-reference cards. Opposite this, where the old Gardner Hall door used to be, is a large plate-glass window looking into the new reference-room. In front is the delivery-desk, moved far back to the opening into the main book-hall. The space between this and the main entrance door is now a waiting-room, and the delivery-desk is much nearer the great body of the books. A small door opens from behind the desk, into what has been known as the librarian's room, and a larger door from the easterly side opens into a space 12 ft. x 20 ft., which is so much addition to the waiting-room already described. From this space a glass door opens through a plate-glass partition, into a large, square, well-lighted room, shelved for reference-books, where it is expected that the librarian will in future be found; a central point, commanding all the departments and easily accessible to the public, either from the waiting-room or from the reading-room. At the easterly end of the space are double folding doors opening into the new Gardner Hall. This noble room is about 35 ft. in width, by an average length of 58 ft., and 15 ft. in height. On the south side, towards Washington street, is a large bow-window, with cushioned seats extending around it. At the opposite end is a large arched alcove, containing a massive fire-place of moulded Amboy bricks, with a stone mantel. On each side is an oak settle and book-shelves. From the front of the alcove, shelving for books and atlases, mostly used in connection with the reading-room, extends along the walls for about one quarter of the length of the room, and the remainder of the wall is wainscotted with a six-foot dado panelled in quartered oak. The floor is also of quartered oak. The reference-room is connected with the reading-room by double doors, corresponding to those by which the reading-room is entered from the main passage, as above described. The ceiling of the reading-room is enriched with appropriate cornice work, and is tinted a delicate cream color. The walls between the cornice and the oak dado are finished in a light tone of dull red.

The room will be lighted by chandeliers and side brackets carrying both gas and electric burners. Under the chandeliers will stand six long oval tables of quartered oak, furnished with racks for periodicals, and so arranged that two of the chandeliers will hang over each table, affording abundant light for reading.

The following table gives the cost of the work :

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

BROOKLINE, Feb. 1, 1892.

To the Trustees of the Brookline Public Library:—

GENTLEMEN, — In presenting my twentieth annual report to your board, I have to bespeak your kindly consideration for its brevity and incompleteness, since recent illness has made it impossible for me to do more than outline the work of the year.

It gives me pleasure to be able to report that the statistics of the past twelve months exceed those of all previous ones, in the general use and circulation of books,—this, too, in the face of all the inconveniences incident to the building of the new reading-room and the remodelling of the old one; a process which has deprived us entirely of the use of the reading-room for many months, thereby crowding the waiting and desk room to excess, and sadly deranging our usual facilities for delivery work. As it is, we have a recorded circulation of 59,452 vols. at the desk, and 1,279 vols. on the Trustees' account, giving a total home-use of 60,731 vols., with a daily average of 196 at the desk and of 200 on the total home circulation. These figures have been attained in 303 library days, and in account with 4,519 card-holders. Beside this loan of books we also have a registration of 13,094 vols. issued for use in the library, thus making the aggregate circulation, or delivery of books, 73,825,—an average of 244 per day, and a gain of 7,551 over the aggregate of last year.

The library has been increased by 1,179 vols. (239 having been gifts), making the whole number of books 37,477. The selection of new books has been carefully made, oftentimes with the aid of the slips from the "suggestion box," and one may safely say that the year's accessions compare favorably, in usefulness and interest, with any former year, as may be seen by reference to the annual list. (Appendix E.)

The record of gifts (Appendix B.) shows a long list of friends, and of generous contributions in the form of books, pictures, periodicals and pamphlets. All these have been duly accepted at your monthly meetings and properly acknowledged. Many of the books from this source are simply entered on the catalogue of accessions, but remain otherwise uncatalogued, owing partially to my long leave of absence at the time of the San Francisco convention of the "American Library Association," and more recently to my two months of enforced absence on account of illness. For this reason the titles do not appear in the accompanying annual list.

Some special work has been accomplished during the year, the chief being the completion of the typewritten card-catalogue for public use, of which mention was made in the last report. Since that report, the whole of the printed catalogue of 1873 and the last part of that of 1881 have been copied by the type-writer, and more than half the cards carefully revised by the librarian. When this revision, which has all been done outside of library hours, is completed and the cards arranged in the cases now being prepared for them, the whole will be placed at the service of the public, in what will be known as the catalogue-room.

In addition to this card-catalogue, another has been prepared for the use of the young people, which will take its place in the waiting-room as soon as the room and cases are available. This latter piece of work has been done with the two-fold purpose of guiding the young in the choice of suitable books, and of preserving the general catalogue from the wear and tear of juvenile fingers.

Among other specialties we have prepared duplicate copies of our own "Fiction" and "Juvenile" lists for desk use, one of each being held in reserve for emergencies. Two copies of Sargent's "Reading for the young" and two of Griswold's "Descriptive lists of novels" have also been carefully posted with our library numbers and added to the general stock of desk finding-lists.

Of the upper reading-room little can be said except that its patrons have been long-suffering and uncomplaining through all the deprivations of the past seven months, and that we trust that their patience will be amply rewarded when the new Gardner Hall shall open its doors to them.

The lower, or children's reading-room, under the supervision of Mr. Orcutt, has been open every afternoon through the year; a daily account of attendance has been kept, showing that 6,821 children have used the room. A small selection of new books suitable for juvenile readers, has been bought recently for this reading-room, and full sets of some of the popular juvenile magazines are soon to be placed on its shelves—important steps which will make the room still more attractive to the younger portion of the community.

Omitting many of the minor details of the year, and saying nothing further of the changes and improvements in the building, or of their adaptation to the present and future needs of the library, I respectfully submit the foregoing in the belief that it embraces the essential facts of our library work for 1891-2.

MARY A. BEAN,
Librarian.

THIRTY-FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

In presenting the thirty-fourth annual report of the Public Library, the trustees desire to call attention, first of all, to a very gratifying increase in the circulation. The total circulation for the year is 66,274. This shows an increase of 9,362 over the figures reported last year; almost twice as much as the increase during the two years from 1888 to 1890, which was 4,887.

Some considerable part of this increase is due to the growth of the town which has added to our list of borrowers, during the year, 487 new names. But during the two years from 1888 to 1890 the number of borrowers was increased by 985 new names. Taking the period last mentioned as a basis of comparison, it appears that the increase of circulation during the present year is almost twice as great, while the increase of borrowers is less than one-half. The trustees may fairly claim that the improvements recently made have borne their part of this good fruit. A little more than half of this year's increase in the total circulation, or the sum of 4,665, represents an increase in the use of books for reference or reading within the library building. The readers of these books, for the most part, find seats in the reading room, as there is no other suitable place provided for them. No record is kept of the use of the reading room by those who read the magazines and papers on our tables; but it is certain that this use is constantly increasing, so that, of late, it is not uncommon to find every seat occupied. This fact, taken together with the increasing number of those who use the reading room for the consultation of books from the shelves, shows that the day cannot be far distant when the trustees will feel obliged to ask for means to enlarge the space at their disposal which can be devoted to the purpose of reading.

Perhaps, the most important addition to our library equipment, made during the year, is the new card catalogue. This, as now furnished for public use, includes all books added to the library since the publication of the supplement to the catalogue, in 1881. It will be extended to cover the whole library during the year to come. The chief advantages of a card catalogue are, that it is always complete up to date, and that it makes possible a greater number of cross references, and thus a better analysis of the contents of the library, than can be embodied in a book, without making it too cumbersome and expensive. In this latter respect a card catalogue may be continually enriched as the library staff find opportunity to analyze the contents of books and fill out new cards with appropriate references.

Another decided improvement has been brought about by the opening of the Children's Reading Room, in the basement. The entrance to this room is in the rear of the building, and any one having the curiosity to look in there, especially on a stormy afternoon, will find a room full of children very happily employed. The opening of this room has also given us a quieter and less crowded waiting room in front of the delivery desk ; though even with this relief that part of the building is still found to be uncomfortably small.

A "suggestion box" has been placed at the end of the delivery desk, and citizens of the town who find that the library does not contain the books they seek, are invited, by this means, to make known their wants. The trustees cannot bind themselves, in all cases, to purchase the books recommended ; but during the past year they have purchased a large number of books in accordance with requests thus presented, and in such cases, the person by whom a book has been recommended (if the book was published at the time it was recommended) is promptly notified when it is ready for circulation.

The privilege of taking out a number of books at a time, which has been heretofore given to the teachers in our public schools, has now been extended to the principals of every private school within the limits of the town.

The committee on the library has adopted the custom of holding regular weekly meetings, and has been empowered by the board to purchase each week a limited number of new books. In this way the books of the day are more promptly put into circulation, and more time is secured for the discussion of various questions pertaining to progress in library affairs. One of these questions has to do with the relations between the library and the public schools, and an earnest effort will be made by the trustees, in consultation with the school committee, to devise methods by which the teachers and the school children of the town may derive greater advantages from the library. Other questions, not here specified, are held under consideration by the trustees, who are desirous that the use of the library should be extended as widely as possible among all inhabitants of the town.

Some minor improvements, such as the better method of displaying the titles of new books on the bulletin boards, have been introduced. The publication of the monthly bulletin has been suspended, the time and expense involved seeming too great for the limited number of people who made use of it. Hereafter, the additions to the library will be published, from time to time, in the Brookline Chronicle.

The list of accessions, and a more detailed account of the the work of a very prosperous year, will be found in the reports of the treasurer and the librarian hereto appended.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

BROOKLINE, February 2, 1891.

To the Trustees of the Brookline Public Library : —

GENTLEMEN, — Permit me to lay before your board my nineteenth annual report, which shall embody, as briefly as may be, the principal points in the history of our library work for the year ending January 31, 1891.

Chief among these points stand a larger general circulation than ever before reported ; an increased and increasing use of the library in the line of study and research ; greater interest in school and library collaboration ; and an unprecedented use of the reading-room — all indicating a growing appreciation of the true value of the library as a working factor in the community.

The increasing activity in these directions has required much additional work, both routine and special, in fact more work than could be accomplished in library hours, and therefore, extra time, without stint, has been devoted to its completion, and I may be permitted to report, without undue assumption, that every effort has been made to meet all requirements, and to the best of my belief, with a good degree of success.

Condition of the Library.

The present condition of the library differs from that last reported only in the fact that the accessions have increased its size and utility, and that each year finds it better equipped for the work before it.

Aids and guides to its contents have been multiplied, and still further work is in progress. When the full plans are carried out, it would seem as if all the conditions of a well-appointed library had been fulfilled.

Accessions to the Library.

In common with the principal statistics of the year those of accession have shown an upward tendency, though not as strongly marked as in case of the circulation. The leading statistics on books being briefly these: number bought, 1,021; number given, 148; number of periodicals bound and added to the shelves, 169; making a total addition of 1,338 volumes, and increasing the whole collection to 36,298 volumes.

Beside the books, we have received pamphlets, periodicals, and maps from various sources, all of which have been duly reported to your board and duly acknowledged. The appended list tells the story specifically, and I need not name individuals, sufficient to say that were I to do so, it would be but a repetition of names already familiar in our annual reports as constant benefactors.

The minor statistics of accession are as follows: 236 pamphlets, by gift and purchase, the greater part, or 230, being gifts. Fifteen wall maps and plans, chiefly of Brookline and Boston have also been received.

Circulation of Books.

All through the year we have been sensible of greater activity in this department, but the final summing up of its statistics goes beyond our expectations, showing an undeniable increase of nearly 4,700 volumes in home circulation, and more than 9,000 in the total circulation, with a gain of 487 new borrowers — 4,035 being the full number registered.

The exact figures in comparison with last year's are these: 55,105 volumes against 50,408 for home use; 11,169 volumes against 6,504 for library use; and 66,274 volumes against 56,912 as the total circulation — the reading-room reference books not entering into the account at all.

The number of working-days again falls short of the average, but corresponds with that of last year, viz: 303 full days in which we reached a daily average of 182 for home use, and 219 on the total circulation.

The largest daily delivery occurred October 25, 1890, when 375 books went out; nine other days ranged 300 and over.

The largest week's work is recorded for that ending January 31, 1891, with an account of 1,380 books.

Customary notices on overdue books have been sent to 4,061 persons, and fines to the amount of $186.33 have been collected. After paying postage and other sundries from time to time, the sum of $155.30 has been paid over to the treasurer, leaving a balance of $11.61 in the cash drawer.

A general classification of the circulation at the desk has been registered daily and regularly reported at your monthly meetings, and is herewith tabulated for the whole year and incorporated in this report.

Work of the Year.

There have been no spare moments with librarian or assistants during the year, the regular work having increased in proportion to the growth and character of the circulation, besides which much special work has been done to meet the demands of the time.

The frequent calls upon the library resources have necessitated additional facilities for making them known, and for this purpose a type-written card catalogue of all books not in the printed catalogues has been prepared and placed at the service of the public, and this supplemental catalogue, plus the two printed ones, form a complete index to the entire library, and is kept up to date.

The work upon this catalogue was done during the summer months and was revised and ready for use before September 1st, but was not placed outside until the middle of the month, where it has since been in constant requisition.

The preparation of a full card catalogue is now under way and being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. The supplement of 1881 is nearly copied by the type-writer and ready for revision.

There yet remains the whole of the catalogue of 1873 to be copied in the same manner, and revised and consolidated with the other two, so that we cannot count upon the use of the completed catalogue before another autumn.

All the work of the year has been accomplished without additional help or cost, except in case of the type-writing on the new card catalogue, for which it was thought best to employ an expert writer to expedite the much needed work.

Other Library Facilities.

Among the useful features introduced for the convenience of the public may be mentioned the "suggestion box" with its block of slips ready to be filled out and dropped inside the box for consideration at the weekly meetings of the library committee.

Many persons have made use of this method of recommending books not found in the library, and in very many cases the recommendation secures the purchase. As a matter of curiosity I have preserved the original slips which form a record of results from the first, and find that out of 258 suggestions the committee have approved and bought 136 books and have sent orders for 38 others. I also found 41 works to be already in the library and 40 others rejected, for good reasons, leaving three doubtful ones still pending.

Reading-Room.

Since the reference books have been placed in this room, it has become uncomfortably crowded, and its congested state, at certain times in the afternoon and early evening, when the pupils of our schools are using the reference books and consulting together, makes it well nigh impossible for the general reader to find accommodation of any sort, much less a quiet place.

The capacity of the room is frequently taxed to its utmost; often there are no vacant seats and no room to place an extra one, hence it is of common occurrence that persons start for the reading-room only to turn from its door in disappointment.

A more commodious reading-room, free from noise and confusion of every sort, is the need of the hour, and one which, I am sure, will commend itself to every frequenter of the library as well as to your board.

Children's Reading-Room.

The room which was fitted up for the special use of young people has proved admirably adapted to the purpose, and its use has been eminently satisfactory as an experiment, and may with propriety be counted among the successes of the year and an established fact for the future.

This room is furnished with one large table of sufficient length and breadth to accommodate sixteen children without crowding, and inclined shelves on its front and side walls afford places for eleven more.

Ordinary school-chairs are provided at the table and shelves; and chairs, as well as the table, are fastened to the floor, so that the possibilities of noise from movable furniture are reduced to a minimum. Additional settees and a few ordinary chairs enable us to seat nearly forty children at once.

At present the provisions for reading consist of seven of the popular pictorial papers and juvenile magazines, the latest numbers always on the table, to be picked up at will, and the back numbers to be had at call, by the usual method of "hall slips." A set of the bound volumes of "Harper's Weekly," and of "Youth's Companion," with the two volumes of "Soldiers of the Civil War," are shelved here, and are all great favorites with the boys. A supply of books from the juvenile alcoves, and pictorial books, from the alcoves of history and travel, are likewise sent down from time to time, and many of them find readers, this latter supply being selected by the librarian.

The shelves, or reading-desks as they might be called, are specially adapted to the large volumes of "Harper," and "Youth's Companion," which are loaned over and over to whomsoever asks — provided the hands of the borrowers are clean.

Simple pictures have been framed and hung upon the walls, and light and warmth are abundant.

This reading-room was fitted up late last spring, and first opened in June, and has since been open daily, from 2 to 6 P. M., under the supervision of the janitor. Thus far the children have been quiet and orderly for the most part, and seem to enjoy their special privileges.

Another interesting fact in relation to the possible utility of this room in another direction, is that one of our teachers has twice made use of it for an hour in the forenoon, bringing her class, and devoting her time to reading, in connection with the regular studies in hand; and I think this feature might be systematized and extended with profit — certainly the idea is suggestive.

Conclusion.

Such a full report of the details was made last year that I have purposely avoided them in the present report, although many interesting facts might well be added; but this outline of the prominent features of the year's work will perhaps suffice, and is therefore submitted in that belief.

MARY A. BEAN,
Librarian.

THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The thirty-third annual report of the trustees, together with the report of the treasurer of the board and the report of the librarian, are herewith submitted.

The report of the treasurer shows that, in the main, the investments of the Gardner fund and those of the Hall fund are in an entirely satisfactory condition. The only exception is a decline in value of several bonds connected with the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé system. Should the reorganization fulfil the expectations of its managers, the income, in a new form, will still accrue to the library funds. It is gratifying to the trustees to be able to state that, in any event, the principal sum of the two funds has been so carefully handled that it represents today an amount in excess of the original gifts. A list of works purchased during the year from the income of the two funds is furnished by the librarian.

The report of the librarian shows the following facts: That the number of volumes added during the year by gifts and purchase is 1,204. The total number of volumes now in the library is 34,960. The average daily circulation has been, for home use, 166; for library and home use, 188. The total circulation has been 56,912 volumes.

The multiplication of public libraries has brought forth many new ideas in regard to the arrangement and classification of books. Several new systems have been devised, each having its friends and supporters. No one of these systems would seem to have given unqualified satisfaction to librarians, although many excellent improvements on old usages have unquestionably been made.

The adoption of some improved system for this library has, during the past year, occupied the serious consideration of the trustees. Although fully impressed with the importance of being abreast with library science of today, the change of arrangement in a large library involves so much labor and expense that the trustees have deemed it wise not to move hastily. They have thought it best to carefully study the systems employed in other public libraries, and to gather the experiences of various librarians, hoping to be able eventually to decide upon some method which shall, as nearly as possible, combine the best points of all.

In the meantime, the old plan upon which the library has been worked for so many years, has been adapted, as well as may be, to the increased number of alcoves. It is hoped that the service may be continued in a satisfactory manner during such time as changes in the library system may be in progress.

In their thirty-first annual report, the trustees, in referring to the resignation of their treasurer, Mr. Charles D. Head, took occasion to express their high appreciation of his long and faithful service. The last library year has been saddened by his death. Although he had reached a ripe age, he was always so young in heart and sympathies that his end seems untimely to his fellow-trustees. A conspicuous figure has disappeared from the board, who will long be missed. At a special meeting of the trustees, the following resolutions were adopted and ordered spread upon the library records:—

“The trustees of the Brookline Public Library desire to express their sense of the loss sustained by the library and the town in the death of Charles Dudley Head.

“From the establishment of the library he was its earnest supporter, for nearly twenty-four years a member of the board of trustees, and for more than twenty years their treasurer. In the latter office he rendered services of great value to the town. He was a faithful and efficient member of the board and one whose opinions and judgment they highly esteemed.

“The trustees thus briefly record their estimate of Mr. Head's long and valuable work and their sense of the loss to the town by its cessation.”

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

BROOKLINE, Feb. 1, 1890.

To the Trustees of the Brookline Public Library:—

GENTLEMEN,—The librarian's report for the library year 1889-90 is herewith most respectfully submitted, making my eighteenth in that capacity, and giving the important points of the year's work and my deductions therefrom.

Neither the condition nor the usefulness of the library has been greatly impaired by the changes of the year, although the books have been used under the triple disadvantage of changed location, continuance of old shelf-numbers, and greater distance from the desk.

Condition of the Library.

With the yearly accessions the library now numbers 34,960 volumes, with no greater deterioration than the usual wear and tear brings to pass.

There is no question but that greater care on the part of the public would insure better preserved and more cleanly books, but it is difficult to impress this fact upon the community with sufficient emphasis to secure proper attention to the subject, either at home or in the library.

The catalogues which are placed outside for the convenience of the public have been so seriously maltreated that the subject calls for special complaint and immediate measures for prevention.

These volumes, especially the manuscript finding-lists and interleaved catalogues, which have been prepared at much expense of time and labor, have been subjected not only to careless usage, but to deliberate abuse, the favorite pastime of certain young persons seeming to be the destruction and defacement of these catalogues and bulletins. Great pains have always been taken to keep these catalogues presentable, but the present lawlessness nullifies the effect of all labor in that direction.

Of the condition of the library building and furnishings nothing need be reported, since everything has recently undergone such thorough repairs and freshening up, that things speak for themselves. Judging from opinions freely and often expressed, the recent improvements in the building give great satisfaction to the public, and certainly add to the attractiveness of the place.

Accessions.

The average growth in books has been maintained, with the usual relative proportion of gifts and purchases. The number of additions is not large, but it represents the cream of the new books of the year, in purchase, and many old books, both useful and valuable, in the way of gifts.

The book statistics are as follows :— 727 volumes bought, 328 volumes given, and 149 volumes of bound magazines ; making 1,204 volumes, all told. As usual, a large share of the more valuable and useful books will be found specially credited to the Gardner and Hall funds (Appendixes B and C), and they also appear in the general list of additions for the year.

Generous contributions have come from various sources, near and far, many of them evincing the public spirit and home interest of our townspeople, both ladies and gentlemen. Among the former may be named, Mrs. E. S. Philbrick, Mrs. J. R. Coolidge, Mrs. J. W. Candler, Miss S. B. R. Clark, Mrs. J. M. Codman, Miss E. Chase, and Mrs. A. C. Wheelwright; — among the latter we find the names of Hon. John W. Candler, Col. Geo. N. Carpenter, Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, Messrs. F. W. Hobbs, M. C. Hobbs, F. Hunnewell, and Messrs. Baker, Candage, FitzGerald and Soule of the board of trustees.

Outside the town, we are indebted to Rev. Frederic H. Hedge, D.D., Rev. C. D. Bradlee, Messrs. H. O. Hildreth, Arthur Mason Knapp, and many others; also, to the various departments of the United States government and of the commonwealth; and to numerous home and foreign libraries, the latter including the Tokio library in Japan.

Statistics of gifts, other than books, are as follows: — 620 pamphlets, 316 miscellaneous magazines, 15 maps and plans, and 5 manuscripts.

Circulation.

In no year of the library's history has there been as large a circulation as in that just closed, and in our estimate of this increase it must be borne in mind that it has been reached not only in a short year of 303 days (against the average 307 days), but in account with only 3,548 registered borrowers, of whom it is safe to say that not over two-thirds use their cards regularly, so that practically our annual circulation is in the hands of less than 2,400 people.

With a population of about 10,000 this, at first sight, seems a somewhat low percentage of book-borrowers, but when we consider how many fine private libraries are to be found in Brookline homes, and what a considerable number of residents are both proprietors and constant users of the Boston Athenæum library, and furthermore, that a comparatively small proportion of inhabitants are solely dependent upon our library for either recreation or intellectual culture, these facts and figures fall at once into harmony.

The demand for our books has been steadily increasing throughout the year, and when we remember that it has been met under adverse circumstances, I think we may be pardoned for a sense of gratification that so good a record has been shown.

As previously stated, the library year consisted of 303 days, during which time 49,497 books were charged at the desk and 911 on the trustees' account, making a total of 50,408 volumes for home use. As a part of our reference library is now in the reading room for free consultation, we have no means of knowing accurately the full use of books in the building, but as far as registered, we have given out 6,504 volumes, which, added to the home account, gives a grand total of 56,912.

The averages from these figures are 166 volumes per day for home use, and 188 on the total circulation. The busiest day of the year is recorded on Feb. 23, 1889, when 319 books were given out; and the week ending Feb. 1, 1890, although encroaching one day upon the new library year, shows the best record for over ten years,—viz., 1336 volumes.

The following tabular statement of the classified circulation, as recorded at the desk, affords an insight into the quality and quantity of the reading matter used in the town, and possibly some food for reflection.

Of features not quite as pleasant, I have to report two books as not having been returned to the library, one of which is irrevocably lost ; the other will be made good to the library if not found and returned within a reasonable time. Neither book was of special money value.

Marked and mutilated books have been less numerous than heretofore, and, for the most part, the fines have been paid promptly, amounting to $7 for the year.

A larger number of notices and a corresponding increase in fines is also registered, $159.41 having been collected on 3,819 notices.

Library Work — Regular and Special.

The work connected with the year's circulation of nearly 57,000 volumes may be summed up as follows : Each book passes over the desk twice, and therefore is equivalent to the handling of 114,000 volumes. Every book of the 57,000 has been carefully examined on its return, and all needful repairs made before being replaced upon the shelves.

Each day's home-slips have been regularly arranged and counted, a daily record of circulation by classes has been made, and a monthly report of the same prepared for the regular meetings of the trustees. Hall-slips have also been carefully counted and filed. Notices have been sent to every dilatory borrower, and a cash account of fines kept.

The card register has been increased by 540 new names, all properly distributed in their alphabetical order. All lost cards have been carefully recorded, and new ones are constantly being made out to supply the places of those filled up or worn out.

Separate book accounts are also kept with the teachers of our public schools as part of the desk work, while the trustees' account is registered in the librarian's room.

Outside of what is properly called desk work, two interleaved supplements have been kept posted, one each by Miss Woods and Miss Starkweather. Three new school finding-lists have been copied and posted to date, two of them being the work of Miss Woods, and the third partially copied by Miss Marston. During the year 8,106 books have been covered and labelled, mostly done by Miss Starkweather, and 382 books have been sent to the bookbinder, all preparatory work including schedules (in duplicate) being done by Miss Woods.

Miss Marston has examined the largest part of the 57,000 volumes, has mended all torn leaves and fastened loose ones, has had charge of the reading-room periodicals, cutting, stamping, and placing in covers all the magazines and reviews, besides serving at the desk at stated hours, as do the other assistants.

Added to these regularly assigned duties, each one has contributed no small share in hunting up and supplying material on the special questions and topics which are daily being brought to the library for solution or information.

Such a record requires diligent and conscientious work for its successful accomplishment, and it gives me pleasure to report that neither quality has been lacking in the year's work, so far as this department is concerned.

At the writing of the last report, repairs and alterations were still in progress, and several months elapsed before the work was completed and the building left free to be set in order. During the spring and early summer this task was thoroughly performed, from attic to cellar.

The next important move was to relieve the crowded shelves in the old book-hall by removing a portion of the books into the new addition, and spreading out the remainder on the old shelves.

Without any pretence at re-classification, re-arrangement, or re-numbering, this work was quietly accomplished between July 15 and August 22, over 23,000 volumes having been moved to their temporary quarters, where they will remain until the final decision is reached in relation to the most desirable system of arrangement.

At the time of moving the books, each alcove, as soon as located anew, was carefully examined by shelf-list. Comparatively few books were missing, and these have since been mainly accounted for.

All this work I superintended personally, and did much of it with my own hands, for the sake of having the work completed during the summer vacation and before the busy season came upon us, believing such a course would best serve the interests of the library and the public.

The customary work on the accession catalogue, shelf-lists, card catalogue, interleaved catalogues, monthly bulletins, manuscript fiction-lists, and preparation of periodicals for binding has all been accomplished between daily calls upon my time and attention in the direction of personal assistance to all who seek or need it. I have cheerfully rendered all such service, only too glad of the opportunity to prove the extent and excellence of our library and to place its books more effectively at the disposal of the public.

Much of this service has met with pleasant recognition, especially from the ladies of the Tuesday, and Friday clubs, and I can but feel that whatever shortcomings my other work may have shown, ample compensation is found in the success of this special feature.

This report is far more in detail than usual, but is given in the belief that it may be of interest to such as do not fully know the extent of our library work, as well as to those who have followed it from year to year.

MARY A. BEAN,
Librarian.

THIRTY-SECOND ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The thirty-second annual report of the Trustees, the report of the Treasurer of the Board, the report of the Librarian and the report of the Building Committee are herewith submitted.

The report of the Treasurer shows the good condition of the investments belonging to the Gardner Fund and to the Hall Fund. The income has been duly received. This income as heretofore has been especially devoted to books of higher cost, and a list of them is included in the report of the Librarian.

The library books are in average condition. There is more indication of injury from unwashed hands than from deliberate mischief. This of course might easily be in great measure prevented by watchfulness of parents. There are, however, cases of maltreatment of books by folding down of leaves to mark places, often in works read by adults, which are more reprehensible. Too much can hardly be said against this vicious practice.

The number of volumes added during the year by gift and purchase is 1106, making the total number of volumes in the library 33,756, besides a large number of unbound works and pamphlets.

The average daily circulation has been for home use 146, and for library and home use together 170,—the total circulation having been for the whole year 52,016.

In the year 1869 the library was moved from its modest quarters in the old Town Hall, now the Police Station, into the new building. In 1889, after twenty years of steady growth, it expands itself into the new wing now just completed. Twenty new alcoves are added to the twenty already existing, thus doubling the book-hall shelving. The Trustees have, however, looked beyond this, and have so spaced the new alcoves that an intervening book rack can readily be placed in each, with two exceptions, and it is safe to say the present building will comfortably contain all the books likely to be in the possession of the library at the close of the first decade of the twentieth century.

The report of the Building Committee gives a full description of the new north wing, and other extensive alterations and improvements.

After the completion of the new hall the Trustees thought best to remove the brick wall and circular iron stair-case back of the delivery desk, thereby perfecting the ventilation and opening out a view through the whole extent of the hall. This has been done by Mr. Melcher, who has also built the beautiful delivery counter from designs made by Mr. Fehmer, as well as the reference-book shelves and table-racks for reviews and periodicals in Gardner Hall.

The new arrangement made by the town authorities for heating the Public Library, together with the High School and Pierce Grammar School, by steam, from a plant located in the basement of the High School building, though beneficial to the books and their bindings, is likely to result in a large increase in the cost of heating the Public Library. The proportion of cost has been fixed at 40 per cent for the library, and 60 per cent for the schools named. The bill rendered and paid by the library for this service up to January 31, 1889, amounted to $309.96, against $134.40 for coal used in 1887 for heating by furnaces, and in addition thereto the library will have to pay its proportion of the expense of running the plant to the end of the heating term, which is likely to amount to $200 more for the library to pay.

It is fair to state, however, that the increase in the size of the library building would have caused an increased outlay for furnaces and fuel to have heated it in the old way, but the increase in the building is only in the book department and the new basement, while the old halls and reading rooms remain the same. For the increase of the building it would be fair to allow 50 per cent increase of fuel over that used in 1887. If that were to be done we should then have the cost of heating by furnaces to be, in round numbers, say $200, instead of say $500 per annum for heating by steam as now arranged to be done.

The Trustees have decided to offer to the public a suggestion-box with an opening in the new delivery counter. This box can only be unlocked by the Library Committee. All honest communications will receive careful consideration; but the Board expressly request that every such communication shall be signed with the true name of the writer.

REPORT OF THE BUILDING COMMITTEE.

In accordance with their decision as set forth in the 31st annual report the Trustees at the ensuing March meeting asked the town for an appropriation of $15,000 for the purpose of building an additional wing to the original structure, and for the improvement of certain faulty arrangements connected with the westerly entrance. This estimate of cost was reached by the study of preliminary designs with approximate figures, and was thought to be ample.

The Trustees had the gratification of finding that the town placed sufficient confidence in their judgement of the pressing needs of the Library to grant the money without debate.

The architect was at once instructed to draw out working plans and specifications, and bids were publicly advertised for in conformity with the by-laws of the town.

When, at the appointed time, the several sealed offers were opened, it appeared that the sum of the lowest bids, together with the architect's commission, would just about absorb the entire appropriation. As it would evidently be unsafe to enter upon so considerable an expenditure without a respectable margin for contingencies, the Trustees felt it to be incumbent upon them to adopt one of two courses,—either to dwarf their well-matured plans, or to ask the town for a small additional appropriation. After due consideration the latter course was decided upon, and a statement of the facts being made at the next town meeting, the sum of $1,500 was promptly added, making the entire appropriation $16,500.

The plans were drawn by our townsman, Carl Fehmer, Esq., under whose immediate superintendence the work was carried out. The carpenter work was by Messrs. Creesy & Noyes; the mason work was by Mr. Horace James; the painting and glazing was by Mr. B. F. Baker; the plumbing was by Messrs. Kenrick Brothers; the iron work was by Messrs. G. W. & F. Smith; the steam-heating apparatus was by the Walworth Construction and Supply Co.; and the wiring and electric light apparatus was by Messrs. Fuller, Holtzer & Co. The wide opening connecting the delivery room with the book hall was made by Mr. Wm. K. Melcher, who also constructed the new and artistic delivery counter, as well as the reference shelving and table-racks in Gardner Hall.

The new north wing is substantially built of simple brick work, with a single string course of hammered granite conforming in its lines and style as nearly as possible to the original building.

The basement story is entered by a wide door upon a level with the asphalt roadway which extends from School Street to Prospect Street. Upon the right is a well-warmed and lighted apartment, measuring 18.6 feet by 30.6 feet, adapted for the purpose of a lecture or study room in connection with the use of the Library. Upon the left is a finished packing room, measuring 27 feet by 30.6 feet, from which a powerful and easily handled elevator ascends, through a protected well with doors on every floor, to the upper story. From the wide entry-way between these two rooms a handsome staircase of bronzed iron with square landings mounts through the book hall and gallery to the attic floor.

The main story is the book hall proper, connected by an opening about fourteen feet wide with the old book hall. The new alcove gallery connects in the same manner with the old alcove gallery.

The new hall measures 54.7 feet in length by 35 feet in width. Both the gallery and hall floors are of quartered oak. The iron columns and gallery railing, as well as the two iron staircases, are finished in gilt-bronze.

The number of alcoves in the new hall and gallery is twenty, which is the same number contained in the old hall, and the shelving room is practically doubled. When the old hall is newly painted the style of both will be uniform throughout.

Above the gallery is an upright story through which pass columns supporting the roof, thus avoiding the use of trusses. A number of comfortable rooms, approached by the main staircase, can be constructed on this floor when the demand shall arise. Four approved ventilators open through the sky-lights in this story; under them are swinging sashes worked from the alcove gallery. This relieves both the old and new galleries of the accumulating heated air.

The long, steep flight of stairs formerly leading from the side entrance to the second story has disappeared, and a much needed passageway from the outer door to the delivery room has been opened in its place. This change relieves the Librarian's room of the constant through travel to which it has been previously exposed, and affords a free approach directly to the interior of the building from the private door. A new oak staircase, with easy rise and square landings, ascends to the Board room and other apartments above. This staircase also descends to the basement, where, in addition to some other improvements, a neat and convenient dressing room provided with modern requirements has been constructed.

The entire building is now heated by steam through direct and indirect radiation. This is furnished by underground pipe from the boiler plant in the basement of the High School. The apparatus proves itself equal to any demand likely to be made upon it.

The Library is lighted throughout by twenty candle power incandescent lamps. The electricity is supplied from the Brookline Gas Light Company's works. As no fire of any kind will longer be needed in the building, the danger from that source is now reduced to a minimum.

The cost of the entire work has been sixteen thousand four hundred and ninety-seven dollars and fourteen cents, leaving an unexpended balance of the appropriation of two dollars and eighty-six cents.

It is fair to say, however, that this includes an outlay of nearly three hundred dollars for indirect radiation, which the Trustees had supposed to be already provided for in the contract between the town and the Walworth Construction and Supply Company, and also includes the expenditure of three hundred dollars for electric wiring in the old building, which was not a part of the estimate on which the appropriation asked for was based.

This report would hardly be complete without allusion to the excellent character of all the work, and to the uniform courtesy with which the several contractors have received every suggestion which has from time to time been made, and the desire manifested by them to make everything entirely satisfactory to those in charge.

It is also a pleasure to refer to the careful supervision of our architect, who has been ready at all times to devote hours to personal inspection and conference, and who has from the beginning to the end displayed more than a professional interest in the success of the undertaking.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

BROOKLINE, February 1, 1889.

To the Trustees of the Brookline Public Library:—

GENTLEMEN,—The librarian's annual report, for the year ending January 31, 1889, is herewith most respectfully submitted — being the seventeenth which it has been my privilege to lay before your board.

By reason of the changes in the working force in the early part, and the inconvenience and disorder incident to the extensive additions and alterations in our building in the latter part, our whole year's work has been accomplished under such great disadvantage that it calls for, and will meet, I am sure, the kindly consideration and forbearance of your board, as well as of the public at large, should any shortcomings have manifested themselves.

The patience of our daily patrons has undoubtedly been taxed severely at times, but always unavoidably and quite as much to our regret as to their own, and I am sure I voice the feeling of the majority when I say that, barring the noise and dust, which we could not control, and the delays in finding books displaced by the exigencies of the hour, we have succeeded in keeping the wheels moving with as little friction as possible.

Condition of the Library.

The library has been virtually in the hands of the builders for the greater part of the year. Thousands of books have been displaced either temporarily or permanently, by the requirements of building, many of them having lain upon the gallery floors for months, while others have been piled in odd corners, stranded and homeless until they can be moved into their new quarters.

When the dust is shaken off our books, I think we shall find them otherwise uninjured and in their usual state of preservation and repair, except in the case of the old leather bindings in the periodical alcoves where the effect of the lime seems to have been that of the disastrous "last straw"—literally breaking the backs of many of the older magazines and to such an extent that whole series will require immediate rebinding.

With these exceptions our entire collection of 33,756 vols. may be regarded as satisfactory, and the coming year will, I trust, see them all thoroughly renovated and rearranged.

Accessions.

The statistics gathered from the accession catalogue and the periodical schedules are as follows:—number of books purchased 700, number given 338, number of periodicals made up into volumes 68,—making a total addition of 1,106 volumes. Of this number 47 vols. were bought to replace worn-out books, and 3 more were replaced by individuals, thus making 50 replacements and leaving a net gain of 1,056 volumes. Among them are many valuable works whose titles occur either in the Gardner and Hall Fund lists, or in the general list of accessions for the year. [Appendixes B., C. and D.]

It is my pleasant duty to call attention to the long list of friends to whom acknowledgement is due for their numerous and valuable gifts, and from among them to cull the names of Mrs. E. P. Denny, the late Mrs. George Griggs, Mrs. Amos A. Lawrence, and the late Miss Lucy Ann Potter, among the ladies; Col. Geo. N. Carpenter, Hon. Theodore Lyman, and Charles S. Sargent, among our townsmen; and the various departments of the United States government, as being specially noteworthy for the number and value of their gifts.

Circulation.

The administration of the circulating department has suffered most from the disturbed condition of the library for the past six months or more, its work having been accomplished under most adverse conditions, yet the results of the whole year give little evidence of these difficulties, our daily average for home circulation proving higher than last year; and were it not for the change in the reference department, which precludes any registration of the use of the books placed in the reading-room for free consultation, and the further fact that our rooms have been so long unfavorable to quiet study during the daytime, I am confident that our record of books used in the building would have exceeded anything heretofore reported, and I base my assertion upon a knowledge of the fact that the number of inquirers has been constantly increasing during the year.

Something of the character of the home circulation may be gathered from the following statistics which are condensed from the recently inaugurated monthly reports, and which cover the four months from Oct., 1888, to Jan., 1889:—

CLASSES.	OCT.	NOV.	DEC.	JAN.	TOTAL.
Fiction	2,039	1,841	1,712	2,001	7,593
Juvenile literature	609	831	881	1,037	3,358
Travels and Natural sciences	171	166	149	220	706
History and Biography	328	349	365	453	1,495
Polit. Econ., Philos., Lang. and Lit.	81	75	71	97	324
Essays, Collected works, etc.	92	50	55	110	307
Poetry, Drama and Classics	79	86	100	146	411
Art, Agriculture, Domestic economy	54	50	46	69	219
Law, Medicine and Theology	49	38	24	56	167
Books in German and French	21	20	19	16	76
Bound Periodicals	16	29	23	38	106
Magazines (in numbers)	150	132	168	160	610

The library has been open 306 days, and the sum of its circulation reaches 44,637 volumes for home use, and (so far as recorded) 7,379 volumes for use in the library,—the whole amounting to a total use of 52,016 volumes for the year, at a daily average of 146 on home use, and 170 on the whole circulation. The largest daily issue occurred April 21, when 300 volumes were registered, and the week ending March 24, has the best weekly record, showing 1,060 volumes delivered.

Out of this large number of loans only two volumes have been absolutely lost, and about twenty-five or thirty cases of abuse have been detected and fined.

Four hundred and forty-five (445) new names have been added to the card registry during the year, making 3,008 cards issued to date, representing as many card-holders, but by no means an equal number of constant users of the library.

A further item of this department is the sending of 3,558 notices on overdue books, upon which fines to the amount of $149.90 have been collected.

The Reading-Room.

Marked changes and improvements have taken place in the appointments of this room, notably in the new cases of reference books placed conveniently and freely at the disposal of the public, with two small tables for the special use of those who consult these books; a change so generally acceptable to the public that one would suppose that nothing but careful usage and perfect security of the books could be possible, but I regret to report that a volume has been stolen from one of the cases during the past week, and several others show signs of very careless handling.

The new racks that have been introduced upon the tables permit a better arrangement of the magazines and leave more space for the weekly and daily papers, as well as freer use of the tables for purposes of reading and study, and they prove a welcome relief from the former overcrowded state of the tables.

A year rarely goes by without some increase in the reading-room literature, and the present forms no exception to the rule. Several new subscriptions have been added recently to our already long list, including the "Boston Post" (daily), "London Times" (weekly), copies of "Life," "Puck," "Dial," and the "Helping Hand."

The patronage of the reading-room has been steadily increasing for several years and bids fair at times to overrun our present accommodations.

Other Improvements.

When we shall have entered upon the full results of this year's completed and projected improvements our library will possess not only a fine new book hall in addition to the old, but the entire building will be heated by steam and lighted by electricity ; a new counter will grace the waiting-room, over which a full view of the library interior may be enjoyed, and all the discomforts of the year will be forgotten in a pardonable pride in the new order of things.

In Conclusion

I beg to record my grateful recognition of the patience and fidelity which has marked the course of my assistants through the difficult year now happily closed, and to hope that their service may prove equally acceptable to the Trustees.

MARY A. BEAN,
Librarian.

THIRTY-FIRST ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
TRUSTEES OF THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

The thirty-first annual report of the Trustees, the report of the Treasurer of the Board, and the report of the Librarian, are herewith submitted.

The Treasurer's account of the investments of the Gardner Fund and of the Hall Fund, shows them to be in an entirely satisfactory condition, and that the income has been duly paid in. The money thus received has been, as usual, devoted to the purchase of the more costly and valuable works, which will be found enumerated in the Librarian's report.

As heretofore, it has been necessary to replace many books, worn out by hard service, but the wear caused by legitimate use is never regretted by the Trustees, as it indicates that the library is doing its duty; yet it is fair to say that in too many cases soiling and mutilating the leaves and covers of the books, especially among the juvenile literature and works of fiction, is the result of culpable carelessness. As a whole the books are in as good condition as can reasonably be looked for in a free library.

The number of volumes added during the year by gift and purchase is 1,068, making the total contents of the library 32,700 volumes, besides a large number of pamphlets and other unbound works.

The average daily circulation has been 139 for home use, and 171 for library and home use together, the total circulation having been 52,025 volumes for the entire year.

The old and dangerously splintered hard-pine floor in the gallery of the book-hall has been overlaid by a new and substantial flooring of oak, which proves to be a most satisfactory piece of work.

It is nineteen years since the library was moved from the old Town Hall into the present building. Then there were eleven thousand volumes; now there are very nearly thirty-three thousand volumes.

The alcoves are full and many of them overflowing, and the Trustees believe the time has come when an enlargement of the building should be made.

A preliminary sketch for an addition to the north wing has been obtained, which will nearly double the capacity of the book-hall, and provide for the growth of the library for many years.

The Trustees, after mature consideration, but without committing themselves to any definite plan, have decided to ask the town for an appropriation in order that some suitable addition may be carried out during the coming season.

In the opinion of the Trustees, the proposed alterations and additions can be made at a cost not exceeding $15,000 including all necessary fixtures and heating apparatus.

Friends of the late Lieutenant-Colonel Wilder Dwight of the Second Massachusetts Regiment, who was fatally wounded at Antietam, have presented to the library a life-like portrait of that gallant young officer, painted by Eastman Johnson. This now hangs upon the south wall of Gardner Hall.

During the year the Trustees have been forced, most unwillingly, to accept the resignation of the honored Treasurer of the Board, whose delicate health called for change of climate and rest. The long administration of this important office by Mr. Head has been characterized by watchful care and marked success. The Trustees are pleased to express thus publicly their appreciation of his faithful guardianship.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN.

BROOKLINE, February 1, 1888.

To the Trustees of the Brookline Public Library: —

GENTLEMEN,—My sixteenth report, containing an account of the thirty-first year of the Brookline Library, is herewith respectfully laid before your board. In so doing it becomes my pleasant duty to record, first of all, a successful year in its truest sense, one in which the helpful capacity of the library has been laid under daily contribution, with mutual benefit to itself and to those whom it serves.

The reference work of the year has been unprecedented in our history, frequently engaging the librarian as well as assistants in pursuit of the more difficult subjects of inquiry, thus developing an enthusiasm for the work among ourselves and awakening a hearty appreciation of the worth of the library among the many who seek its aid.

To those of us who have known the valuable contents of the library, and who have long lamented the comparative disuse of its better grades of books, this increased and increasing demand for them affords great satisfaction and hopefulness.

Condition.

The library now contains 32,700 volumes, and their general condition leaves little cause for criticism or complaint, the only unfortunate feature being the over-crowded state of the shelves, which detracts from their orderly appearance, disarranges the classification, and, in a hasty search for books, often leads to errors.

This anomalous condition of having more books than shelving-room cannot be maintained for any length of time without serious detriment to the best interests of the library. It would therefore seem the part of a wise and practical economy to provide speedily and generously for an extension of the book-hall, so as to double its present capacity; such a plan, happily carried out, would permit a complete re-arrangement and re-classification of the library, placing it at once upon a basis for another twenty years' growth without further alteration or expense, or any of the temporary expedients which add so much to the cost, without equivalent in permanent value, and which sooner or later must give place to the right thing.

Sixteen years ago the library underwent a thorough re-arrangement which has carried it smoothly along until the present time, and your librarian hopes for the opportunity and privilege of remodelling it once more, bringing to the work the gathered experience of all these years, and pledging her best efforts to the fulfilment of the task.

Improvements.

The gallery of the book-room has been greatly improved by a newly-laid oaken floor, giving a safe and even surface, free from cracks and splinters, and adding much to the appearance and comfort of the room.

A new case of shelves has been placed at the foot of the gallery stairs, which we propose to utilize for the overflow of books from the fiction alcoves. Other minor improvements, including the repair of furniture, have also been made, and a critical observer might easily discover urgent need for still further renovation.

Accessions.

The average proportion of new books and bound periodical literature, and numerous gifts, make up the year's growth, the net increase being somewhat in excess of that last reported. The several items of book accessions are 604 volumes by purchase, 185 freshly bound serials, 317 volumes by gift and exchange, and four volumes replaced by individuals, making a total entry of 1,110 volumes, with an actual gain, however, of 1,068, owing to the replacement of 42 volumes.

Appendixes B and C give lists of some of the specially valuable accessions, and appendix D adds a full author list of all books placed upon the shelves during the year.

Pamphlets and odd numbers of periodicals, numbering 152 and 60, respectively, complete the full account of accessions.

Gifts.

Aside from the usual number of books and pamphlets, the library has been the recipient of two generous gifts of another character, one being a portfolio of 100 photographic plates, illustrating Muybridge's "Animal Locomotion," a gift from Hon. Theodore Lyman; the other, a memorial portrait of Lieut.-Col. Wilder Dwight, which was recently presented to the library by certain of his friends and fellow-citizens.

A complete list of all who have contributed books and pamphlets is given in Appendix A, from which I would gladly quote and specify gifts, did the limits of this report permit.

Circulation.

The statistics of this department present altogether the most gratifying results of the year, showing gains at all points, but more especially in the use of books of reference and study.

We have had 305 working days, in which we have sent out 43,464 volumes, at a daily average of 139, and have supplied 8,561 volumes for reading and study in the building, making a total use of 52,025 books, or, an average supply of 171½ daily. This circulation is maintained among 2,563 borrowers, 409 additional names having been registered during the year.

As a matter of interest in regard to the gains in the use of books of reference, I submit an item from the record of books loaned on "hall-slips" during the months of December and January, showing 2,055 books thus drawn, nearly one-half (1,001) of them having been used strictly for reference.

The delivery of books is only one phase of the circulation, the duties by no means ending with the desk work, but including the care and preservation of the books, which suffer more or less in the handling, even with the most scrupulous persons, and as our books often fall into careless and untidy hands, it follows that we have much renovating work to do daily, aggregating many thousand volumes per year.

According to the account for 1887-8 we have replaced covers and labels upon 9,222 books, and have been obliged to send 368 more to the bookbinder, as the direct effect of ordinary usage.

Pertaining to the delivery department we have sent out 3,086 postal notices, and have collected $137.87 in fines. Fewer offences in the way of marked and mutilated books have occurred, the fines thereon amounting only to $13.68—which sum is much less than that of the previous year.

Reading Room.

This room continues to increase in popular favor, if one may judge from the number of readers seen daily at its tables. Few town libraries afford such a liberal supply of periodical literature, and fewer still afford the advantage of having the latest numbers lying at hand upon the reading-room tables, ready to be picked up and used without the formula of written application and registry.

The room itself has a bright and attractive air, with its sunny windows, its pictures and portraits, and its inviting array of magazines and reviews; if we could but add “perfect quiet” to these attractions, we should indeed have quite an ideal reading-room.

The two fine portraits which adorn its walls have given rise to frequent inquiries as to subjects and artists, therefore it may not be inappropriate to mention that the portrait of the Hon. Rufus Choate, which has hung for many years over the mantel, was painted by Thomas H. Sawyer shortly after Mr. Choate's death, which occurred in 1859, and was presented to the library in 1873 by Mr. Henry G. Fay.

The facts in regard to Col. Dwight's portrait have already been given in the earlier part of this report.

Library Aids.

Our printed catalogues, with two interleaved supplements, two manuscript fiction lists, an interleaved school-list, and the monthly bulletins of new books are among the instrumentalities by which the public may gain a fair knowledge of the contents of the library up to the latest date, and whenever these are not sufficient, the services of the librarian and assistants are very gladly placed at the command of any who may need them.

When, as sometimes happens, our library does not contain the desired sources of information, the librarian can frequently put the inquirer in the way of consulting other libraries where the books are known to be, and will be most happy to do so.

In conclusion may we not venture to hope that these details of library service clearly demonstrate that the year 1887-8 takes rank among the best years of our library history.

MARY A. BEAN,

Librarian.

THIRTIETH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE TRUSTEES.

THE thirtieth annual report of the Trustees, together with the report of the Treasurer of the Board and that of the Librarian, is herewith submitted.

The Treasurer's report shows the Hall Fund and the Gardner Fund to be well invested, and the income as regularly paid in. From the report of the Librarian it will be seen that the usual number of choice works have been purchased from these sources.

The condition of the books for a hard-worked library is good. The juveniles and favorite works of fiction are continually wearing out, and are as often replaced.

The present number of volumes is 31,632.

The number of volumes added during the year, by gift or purchase, is 1,006.

The average daily circulation during the year has been 136 volumes for home use, or 157 volumes for home and library use.

The total circulation for the year has been 47,921 volumes.

The work of every department has been accomplished in a manner which meets the heartiest approval of the Board.

The story of the year has been saddened by the death of Hon. Thomas Parsons, the honored President of the Board, which occurred on Friday, October 22, 1886.

Mr. Parsons was chosen President, at the first meeting of the Board of Trustees, in the year 1857, and has been annually re-elected to the office, with the exception of three years, during a large portion of which he was travelling abroad.

At a special meeting held October 23, the following resolutions were unanimously passed, and have been spread upon the records : —

WHEREAS, In the death of Hon. Thomas Parsons, the Brookline Public Library has lost a friend, who, from its origin, has been constant and devoted in its support ;

Resolved, That we, the Trustees, cause to be placed upon our records, and transmitted to the family of our deceased President, the following expression of our appreciation of his worth.

We honor him as one of the Founders of this Library, whose labor was freely given to its establishment, and whose valued counsel has contributed to its success. We cherish his memory for the desire to help and serve his fellow-men, which made him a most active and public-spirited citizen of the community and the State. We hold in high regard his purity of motive, his unfailing kindness of heart, his wide charity for the faults and failures of others, and the fidelity with which he discharged the duties of the many public offices to which he was called.

LIBRARIAN'S REPORT.

BROOKLINE, Feb. 1, 1887.

To the Trustees of the Brookline Public Library.

GENTLEMEN, — In accordance with the usual custom, my fifteenth annual report is herewith most respectfully submitted for your consideration.

Taken all in all, the year ending Jan. 31, 1887, has been one of the most satisfactory years that it has been my privilege to report; not because of phenomenal circulation, or excessive statistics of any kind, but because the library has done more genuinely helpful and useful work than ever before, especially in aiding and supplementing school and other educational work.

By this I mean to say, that, apart from the supply of books for ordinary reading, there has been an active demand upon the better resources of the library, for purposes of study and investigation, and I can but feel that in such work the library best fulfils the aim of its founders, and the wishes of its friends.

All that was said on this topic in my last report might be repeated with emphasis in the present instance, and it is cause for congratulation that much of the material which has lain dormant upon our shelves for years, has at last been called into frequent service, with most favorable results.

The tendency to seek information is steadily increasing; and every successful investigation leads to a wider comprehension of our manifold resources, and a clearer recognition of the fact that there is a practical working side to the library.

When this recognition, which is now but partial, shall have become general, it is easy to foresee that our future work is to be in line with the advanced movement now current among the leading libraries of the day.

Condition.

The net gain for the year, as will be seen under the head of accessions, amounts to 895 volumes, which, added to the last reported figures, makes a total of 31,737 volumes; but from this number we have to deduct 105 volumes of duplicate public documents sent to Washington for exchange, leaving 31,632 volumes as the aggregate number now in the library.

In reference to the above-mentioned disposition of duplicates, I beg to say that they were sent in compliance with a special request from the Department of the Interior to the principal libraries, asking that such duplicates as could be spared should be sent to that department, with a view to effecting exchanges with other libraries, for the purpose of supplying deficiencies and completing sets wherever possible.

The opportunity, not only to relieve our over-crowded duplicate room, but to secure other much desired documents in completion of our own sets, was embraced, and our list of needs checked off and duly forwarded; but as yet the returns have failed to come in. Business through government departments being proverbially slow, we shall doubtless receive our quota of exchanges in time.

The average condition of the books has been satisfactorily maintained by the usual processes of addition by gift and purchase, subtraction of worn out books, multiplication of clean covers, and division of labor thereon.

Among the books in perpetual use, 107 volumes have been judged too shabby for further use, and have been necessarily replaced, 424 others have been re-bound, and 8,531 have been freshly covered.

The leather bindings, throughout the library, are beginning to succumb to the combined and deadly influence of gas and furnace heat, so that much repairing and re-binding will be required in the course of the coming year. Fortunately, these books are among those least called for, else the work would have been necessary long ago.

All other library property is generally well preserved, although the gallery floor in the book-hall is out of repair, and some signs of age and decrepitude are manifest in the furniture. I regret to say, too, that some mischievous defacements of walls and woodwork are noticeable, especially at the desk in the delivery-room.

Accessions.

We have not attained the full measure of last year's record in accessions, but have kept well up to the general average, which is always satisfactory. The total entry of new books amounts to 1,006; but, owing to the withdrawal and replacement of 111 volumes, the net gain to the library has been only 895 volumes.

Many valuable works have been bought, including Winsor's "Narrative and Critical History of America," Trumbull's "Memorial History of Hartford County," Smith's "History of Berkshire County," Farrow's "Military Encyclopædia," Bradley's "Atlas of the World," Lightfoot's "Apostolic Fathers," Wraxall's "Memoirs," Brewer's "Henry VIII.," Longfellow's "Life of Henry W. Longfellow," Gen. Grant's "Personal Memoirs," "Letters of George Sand," Blaine's "Twenty Years of Congress," Greeley's "Three Years' of Arctic Service," Benjamin's "Persia," Trotter's "Marocco," Porter's "Rambles in Old Boston," three additional volumes of Alexander Hamilton's "Works," and four volumes in continuation of Stephen's "Dictionary of National Biography."

We have received as gifts 211 volumes, 187 pamphlets, and 225 unbound numbers of old magazines and reviews, besides several papers and serials which have come to us regularly on publication.

Among the larger gifts may be mentioned the "Revue des deux Mondes" (1873-79), from Hon. William Aspinwall; the continuations of the "Census Reports," and the "Official Records of the War of the Rebellion," from Hon. John W. Candler; "United States Congressional Documents for 1885," from Hon. Theodore Lyman; "Annual Reports of Chief of Engineers, U.S.A." (1876-85), from Professor George L. Vose; "Comprehensive Commentary on the Holy Bible," from Mr. William Dearborn; five copies of the "Drainage Commission Report," from Mr. Clement K. Fay; together with miscellaneous books and pamphlets from Miss Emma Loring, Mr. Charles L. Palmer, Mr. Edward S. Philbrick, Professor Charles S. Sargent, Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, and others.

We are also indebted to the public libraries of Boston, Milwaukee, and Toledo, for valuable catalogues, and to various other libraries for bulletins and reports.

Circulation.

An encouraging feature of the circulation for the past year has been the decided increase in the use of books within the library building. Much of this welcome change in the order of things is directly due to school-work, which, in turn, is the undoubted outgrowth of a very general movement in our cities and towns, toward bringing schools and libraries into closer working relations.

Our library was among the first to suggest the mutual benefit of such relations, and to take the initiative in our town, by voluntarily increasing the library privileges of our public-school teachers, with special reference to their school-work. Having thus opened the way, in all good will, the library has waited patiently for the consummation of its long-cherished desire, meanwhile serving teachers and pupils whenever opportunity offered, until something like a promise of success has been attained, as witness the past year's experience.

Nor has the good work stopped with the schools; we have had teachers and members of private classes in art, literature, and music, constantly consulting our books in pursuit of topics allied to their subjects of study, and the boys of our High School Debating Club have come freely to the library for information upon the questions in debate, finding, in almost every instance, ample material for their needs.

Personally, I have taken special pains with the debating club, because I felt that a good opportunity presented itself in which to inculcate a knowledge of the value of books and how to use them, and I shall be much disappointed if some of the young gentlemen have not learned to set a new value upon the library in consequence.

The rest of the story of circulation may be briefly told. Since the last report, 713 additional names have been added to the register, making a total of 2,154 cards now in use. The library has been open 305 full days, during which 41,515 volumes were sent out for home use, and 6,406 books were used in the library, making a total use of 47,921 volumes, at an average of 136 outgoing books per day, and a general average of 157 on the entire delivery.

It will be seen by these figures that the home circulation has fallen off but slightly from last year, although much below our old average.

This may be accounted for, in part, by the fact that a number of families in Brookline and Longwood patronize the "Mudie Library," which very obligingly delivers books at one's door, and as regularly calls for their return, thus saving both time and trouble to the subscribers.

The account of fines shows that we have collected $144.82 upon overdue books, and $20.88 upon torn and otherwise injured books, making the gross receipt from fines $165.70.

The finable books necessitated the sending of 3,327 postal notices.

Books have been defaced in every imaginable way, upon which fines were duly imposed. In five cases the injuries were beyond repair, and have been replaced (with one exception) at the expense of the borrowers. Three books have been lost; two of them were borrowed and never returned, by individuals whose present place of abode is unknown. The money value in either case is small. The third loss will be made good by the loser, unless search for the missing book proves successful.

Reading-Room.

While the book-department has shown gains in efficient work, it is gratifying to note that the patronage of the reading-room has greatly increased, and that it has seldom been without readers. The Trustees will doubtless remember the time when a dozen persons in Gardner Hall, for the entire day, would have been an exceptionally large number, and the tables surrounded by readers, as now, an unheard of thing.

The supply of periodical literature has always been liberal, and the wonder is that its appreciation and use should not have been even more marked in all the years gone by.

Having thus reviewed the library-year, and presented its principal points of interest, it only remains to say that in every department there is cause for general satisfaction.

MARY A. BEAN, Librarian.
